INTRODUCTION

1. PRONUNCIATION

A clear table of Hawaiian sounds with their nearest equivalent in English is given below. The student can master these sounds easily in a few drills, learning several each day with an experienced Hawaiian instructor, if possible. He should then be able to pronounce any word at sight.

This method of acquiring pronunciation is far superior to the practice of committing to memory the phonetic pronunciation of words.

2. ALPHABET

The true Hawaiian alphabet consists of but twelve letters — five vowels and seven consonants. They are recited in this order; first the vowels then the consonants.

Vowels	Consonants
A - (ah)	H - (hay)
E - (eh)	K - (kay)
I - (ee)	L - (lah)
O - (oh)	M - (moo)
U - (ooh)	N - (noo)
	P - (pee)
	W - (vay)

E Huli Mâkou

David Chung was a bell hop in 1949, earning 26 cents a day, when he wrote this classic mele.
